Best Picture

My Ketchup Smiles

Directed by Eliza McNitt

Synopsis: One evening Diana and her autistic sister Daisy struggle to come to terms with their differences.

Best Drama

Resolution of Two

Directed by Rylee Ebsen

Synopsis: It's prom night and Malcolm sits alone in a motel room at 2am. The night has obviously strayed from the infamously standard prom night shenanigans, and something has gone wrong. He meets a prostitute at the pay phone and they have a conversation about their depressing lives.

Best Comedy

Bless You

Directed by Chung Lam

Synopsis: Joe is a simple young man. He has only one purpose in life, which is to say 'bless you' whenever someone sneezes. When no one says, "bless you" after he sneezes one day, Joe loses faith in his purpose until a chance encounter gives him hope again.

AT&T Wildcard

Yellow Fever

Directed by Dan Rickmers

Synopsis: When he realizes he's been set up on a blind date with an Asian girl, Jim is so paranoid that she'll think he has an Asian fetish that he starts to believe he actually has one.
